Full Verbal Description

Piece of a metate with 4.4 cm of finished edge preserved; no leg scars present. The underside is well-finished: carefully ground and fairly flat. The curvature, <sup>at the finished edge</sup> up to the working surface is the worst-finished part, either not ground initially, or chipped at some later date. The upper surface is well ground, with the higher areas flat and smooth. The surface nonetheless looks pocked due to the medium to large holes in the vesicular basalt. There is a slight curvature to the working surface, perpendicular to the finished edge. Not drawn
